

SAUCY SIDEWALK VENDERS

Dry Goods Merchants in Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street Complain.

Pedlers Impudently Shout in Women's Ears and Shake Things to Sell in Their Faces.

TWENTY ARRESTED BY THE POLICE.

A Petition of Shoppers Was Sent to the Commissioners, but Before It Had Been Acted on Captain Pickett Ordered a Raid.

The flower peddlers and fruit vendors in the Tenderloin district have become so noisy in their cries and persistent in their efforts to sell that the merchants on Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street have complained of them to the police as a nuisance. There is no objection on the part of the large dry goods houses to these men making a livelihood, but the manner in which they conduct themselves has proved so offensive to the women patrons of the big stores that the proprietors have been obliged to ask police aid to keep the fruit and flower sellers in check.

Just how great the nuisance had grown was shown by a letter addressed a few days ago to the Police Commissioners, signed by twenty women who are in the habit of shopping along Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street. They wrote that the flower peddlers had become so impudent that they shouted in ladies' ears and shoved flowers into their faces.

The letter was turned over to Inspector Brooks, who has charge of the district where the peddlers and vendors complained of congregated. He at once called on Captain Pickett, of the West Thirtieth Street Station.

It so happened that on last Friday, the day before he received Inspector Brooks' communication, Captain Pickett, as a result of his own observation, had ordered a raid upon the vendors in the Tenderloin. His order twenty men were arrested. They were mostly Greeks, and the police say that more trouble is caused by this nationality than by any other. In Jefferson Market Court they were fined from $1 to $5 each, and were told to keep their noses clean.

On Saturday morning, at the suggestion of the Magistrate in backing up the police was in the nature of a surprise attack on the offenders. In the past, many such cases have been dismissed in court, thereby offsetting the efforts to abate the nuisance and encouraging the peddlers and vendors to become even bolder in the prosecution of their business.

Since the raid, however, a great improvement has been noticeable on Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street. The peddlers and vendors are kept moving, their cries are less noisy and their conduct with respect to pedestrians less marked. The merchants and shoppers are correspondingly pleased.

WHAT THE MERCHANTS SAY. "There is no denying," said Manager Richard Smith, of Hickory, on Twenty-third street, "that we and our customers have suffered a great deal of annoyance from peddlers. The flower sellers are the worst behaved. We have had much trouble with two very persistent sellers of puppy animals. One stood at one entrance doorway and another at the other. While the other, who had a stock of eggs, stood at the other entrance, and was equally noisy. We should be glad to have these men. Now things are much better. The police do not allow peddlers to remain long in any one spot.

"Every once in while I have to send out our own employees to drive the peddlers away. They always come back when we tell them to go, and they come back again, just moving to the store next door, where they keep up their shouting and pestering the pedestrians. It is a nuisance. It is a nuisance. Then they come back to us again."

"We complained to the police about a week ago," said Manager John A. Adams, of Adams & Co., Twenty-third street, "that some of the peddlers were thrusting their bouquets into the faces of our patrons. Since then we have heard no more of such complaints. The policeman on this beat does his work well, and whenever the peddlers keep the police busy, they are taken care of again during his absence."

"We have not been troubled much of late by peddlers," said Manager A. C. McKim, of McKim & Co., Twenty-third street, "but they are certainly an annoyance to shoppers."

A NUISANCE, EHRICH SAYS. "The peddlers are a great annoyance," said Samuel Ehrlich, of Ehrlich Brothers. "We have complained of them to the police. They gave us very much trouble last summer, but are not so bad now."

"We are often annoyed by peddlers and vendors," said Manager J. H. Crawford, of Crawford & Simpson. "Some of our neighbors are even greater sufferers. These vendors are not only noisy, but they obstruct traffic. They will so fill the street with their carts that the dry goods store wagons cannot be driven up to the curb."

WARING IN ANOTHER SQUABBLE.

Replies to East Siders Concerning His Attack on Hester Street Market.

Colonel Waring has got into a squabble with East Siders because of his attack upon "street markets."

In a letter to a Jewish periodical yesterday he said: "I am sorry to hear that you are acting in my official capacity for the suppression of the street market in Hester street. I accept that charge completely and all responsibility connected with it. The street market has been an illegal nuisance to the community. I do not believe that it has been a benefit to the community. It is a nuisance, and it is my business to see that that part of it is suppressed."

"You also accuse me of having promised that a new market would be built, where push-cart men can carry on their business without molestation, and you say that the Mayor has forgotten this promise. Neither the Mayor nor I have forgotten this promise. On the contrary, we are working actively in its connection with the city men Adler, for the passage of an act that shall authorize the establishment of the market playground to which you refer."

HE SACRIFICED HIS WIFE.

Too Much Religious Reading Led Him to Beat Her Brains Out.

Milltown, Pa., March 2.—Charles Ramsey, of East Waterford, late last night beat his wife's brains out with a club. Sensational religious reading precipitated the attack.

Ramsey believed he was to offer a sacrifice and his wife was to be the victim. He is confined to jail here, and shows all signs of insanity. A commission appointed by the court, yesterday, to examine Ramsey, in connection with the case, was highly connected, and the occurrence has created unusual excitement.

Warren G. Abbott Acquitted.

Warren G. Abbott, formerly president of the Abbott-Katz Brewing Company, who was charged with the larceny of $500 by the other directors of the company, was acquitted by a jury in Part II, of the General Sessions, yesterday. It was alleged that Abbott had collected the money from Patrick J. Mahoney, a saloon keeper, of No. 25 Jackson street, in April last, after he had been deposed as president by the stockholders.

The defense was that Abbott was the victim of a conspiracy and still had claims against the brewery for thousands of dollars.

AMANDA WANDLE SUES.

She Alleges Alienation of Her Daughter's Affection by Her Husband—Daughter Defendant in Divorce Suit.

Before Vice-Chancellor Pitney, in Chambers, Jersey City, Mrs. Amanda Wandle, of Bergen square, yesterday made application for counsel fees and alimony.

She was married to Theodore Wandle in 1892. A girl was born a year later. Two or three years after the birth of the child Wandle left home. Mrs. Wandle claims to have thought him dead. She supported herself and child by sewing. Afterward she heard her husband was in New York State. A few years ago the daughter married William E. Smith, of Jersey City, a designer.

About a year ago Mrs. Smith had occasion to visit the Equitable Insurance building, in New York, and there saw a man who was pointed out by a friend as her father. She spoke to him and it is claimed, the father and daughter became deeply attached to each other. One of the allegations of Mrs. Wandle is that after twenty-four years of absence her husband appeared and alienated the affections of his daughter from her and from Mr. Smith, and that the daughter she had supported had not only left her, but also Smith, and that she had gone to reside with her father in New York.

Mr. Smith has a divorce suit pending against his wife, in which he alleges the same facts. Counsel for Mrs. Wandle claimed the husband had taken from his wife the custody of the child, and refused to make provision for the support of his wife. It was contended that Mrs. Wandle's suit was barred by the Equitable Life Insurance Company as a detective.

The Vice-Chancellor ordered further proof of the alleged desertion, and to Lawson N. Smith, who is the father of the child, to bring it to him. The suit of Dr. Smith against Wandle's daughter will be placed on trial shortly.

MAYOR STRONG EXPLAINED.

He Stated Plainly His Position on the Pending School Bills.

There is great interest manifested by city officials in the school bills which are now before the Legislature. The Mayor intimated yesterday that his statement made to President Macarty, of the Board of Education, and to Lawson N. Smith, of the Board of Education, was misunderstood. What he meant to convey to those gentlemen was that he had not taken any stand against the Pavey bill, the object of which it to discontinue the present system of public school trusteeships. He did not agree with some of Mr. Pavey's remarks, but he was not in a position to do so. He presented them in Albany on Thursday. He did say that if the Strauss bill, which would give the trusteeship of the schools to the Board of Education, passed both houses, that he would not disapprove of it. At the same time he did not say "I would sign it," but rather "I would not object to it."

DEAD AMONG STRANGERS.

Dr. Charles Brown, of Scotland, Died Suddenly at the Hoffman House.

Dr. Charles Brown, a Scotchman, who arrived here on Saturday on route for California, died suddenly of heart disease in his room in the Hoffman House yesterday morning.

Dr. Brown was apparently thirty years old. Nothing is known of him at the hotel except that he came there on Sunday afternoon, having just arrived on a steamship from England. About 9 o'clock yesterday morning a bell boy answered a call from Dr. Brown's room, and received an order for breakfast. When the boy returned to the room with the breakfast there was no response to his knocks. He finally opened the door, and saw Dr. Brown lying on the floor.

Dr. Nash, of No. 9 West Twenty-fourth street, called in to find out what had happened. A gold watch and chain, a diamond ring, and a small box were found in the pockets of the dead man. The body was removed to the Morgue.

HOGAN IS NOT AFRAID.

Mad-Dog Bites Have No Terror for the Williamsburg Truckman.

Dr. Gibier Will Watch Him for Symptoms of Hydrophobia for a Test Case.

DINNER GIVEN TO THE INJURED BOYS.

All the Patients Are Doing Well and No Fears for Any of Them Are Entertained—A Patient from Pittsburg.

It was an interesting party of patients who assembled at the Pasture Institute, Central Park West and Ninety-seventh street, yesterday afternoon. They were the boys—thirteen of the fifteen were boys—were bitten on Saturday morning by the big, black, curly-haired dog which ran amuck on the lower east side of town on that day. They had been told Sunday, when they were first treated, to come back yesterday. Dr. Gibier had also informed them that between the necessary inoculations of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. they would have "something of a lunch." By 10 o'clock the unhappy thirteen boys and the two men were on hand.

The treatment by hypodermic injections in either side of the patients' bodies was given by Dr. Gibier and Dr. Letevie. After it was over the boys had their "something of a lunch." They were not stinted in the matter of food, and the poor little East Side lads had a feed that astonished their stomachs. There was a thick and palatable soup, a piece of fine roast beef, potatoes and tomatoes, and coffee.

Of the fifteen who went to the Pasture Institute on Monday, one has not yet been treated. He was Charles Hogan, a truck driver, who lives at No. 326 South Second street, Williamsburg; and he did not think it necessary to be inoculated.

WILL WATCH HOGAN'S CASE.

Dr. Gibier said that in case Hogan continued to refuse to be treated, he would prove to be a test case.

"Deflections may be made from his case," said the doctor, "which shall be of value. I am sure that the dog who bit these children was mad. It may be that Hogan was not bitten by the same animal, but if he was, as he insists, we can possibly draw lessons. I cannot say how soon the hydrophobia will develop in Hogan. It may not be for three months; it may not be for years; perhaps never; but I shall watch him with an interesting subject, and I shall watch him with a view to symptoms in his case."

Dr. Gibier said that all the patients he had treated seemed to be doing well. He will give them two inoculations a day for four days, and one a day up to fifteen.

An eleven-year-old boy, from Pittsburg, Pa., came to the Pasture Institute yesterday, and said that he had been bitten two hours before he came to the hospital. He was not bitten by a mad dog. His wound was on the left arm.

THOMAS J. DORAN INSANE.

Police Headquarters Clerk Found at the Sinclair House Unconscious.

Thomas J. Doran, clerk of statistics in Chief Clerk Kipp's office at Police Headquarters, is at St. Vincent's Hospital suffering from insanity. Doran was found at the Sinclair House, Broadway and Eighth street, early yesterday morning, in a condition which suggested the possibility of an attempt to commit suicide. Soon after Sunday midnight he walked into the hotel and demanded a room in such a peculiar manner that the clerk showed him with suspicion, and, after assigning him to a room on the third floor, he gave instructions that a watch should be kept upon him.

At a quarter to four o'clock yesterday morning the clerk visited Doran's room and found the unfortunate man sitting on a chair in an unconscious condition. It was immediately conjectured that he had taken poison, and was summoned. When Doran was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where it was found that he had in his possession a bottle of medicine, a credit balance of $250 in his favor at the Manhattan Bank, and a receipt from St. Francis Hospital for the services of Dr. J. H. Doran.

Upon careful examination the medical staff of St. Vincent's Hospital pronounced the patient to be insane.

Mrs. McNe, of No. 276 Seventh street, who is Doran's sister, said yesterday that when he became afflicted with a nervous disease and was taken to St. Francis Hospital, it was his intention to return to his home in the city, but when he was discharged from there on the previous day, upon careful examination the medical staff of St. Vincent's Hospital pronounced the patient to be insane.

TO PASS BEFORE THE MAYOR.

Superintendent Constable's Brigade Will Be Reviewed To-Day.

As the Mayor was scanning his mail shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Superintendent Stevenson Constable, of the Building Department, and two of his deputies, in all the glory of their new uniforms, marched up in front of the executive desk. They had entered with military step and they saluted in military style.

There was a merry twinkle in His Honor's eye as he looked at his secretaries, Mr. Hedges, and he hastily removed an ink blot from his mouth. The humor of the incident caused the secretary to hide his laughter behind a newspaper, while the official stenographers bit their lips in an effort to repress their merriment.

Mr. Constable said he had called to ask the Mayor to call at the Building Department this evening to review the men in their military garb. It was agreed that Colonel Strong should be at the department at 8 o'clock.

He set the case for trial on the first Monday of the April term.
